Origin

David Jansen played Dr. Richard Kimble on TV in the 1960's.

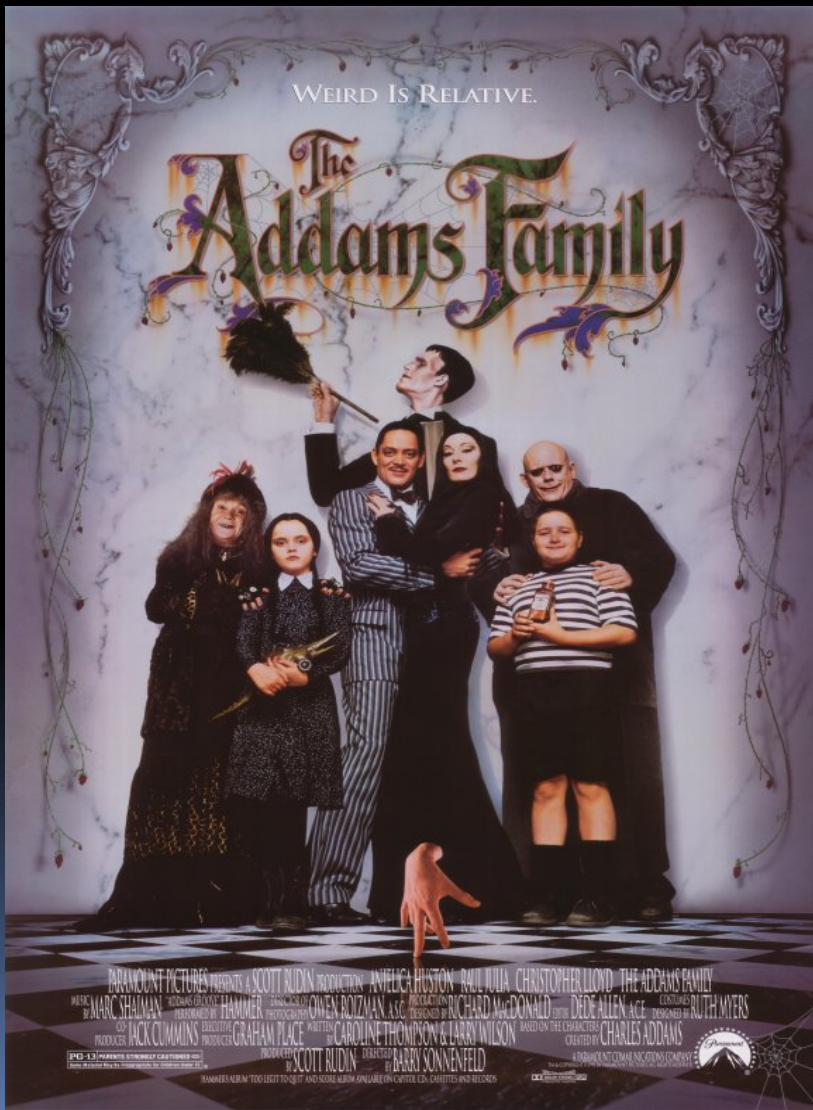

Real-life doctor Sam Sheppard (L) was accused of killing his wife.

The last episode was the most watched show in history (until Roots).

The movies have never minded ripping off TV.

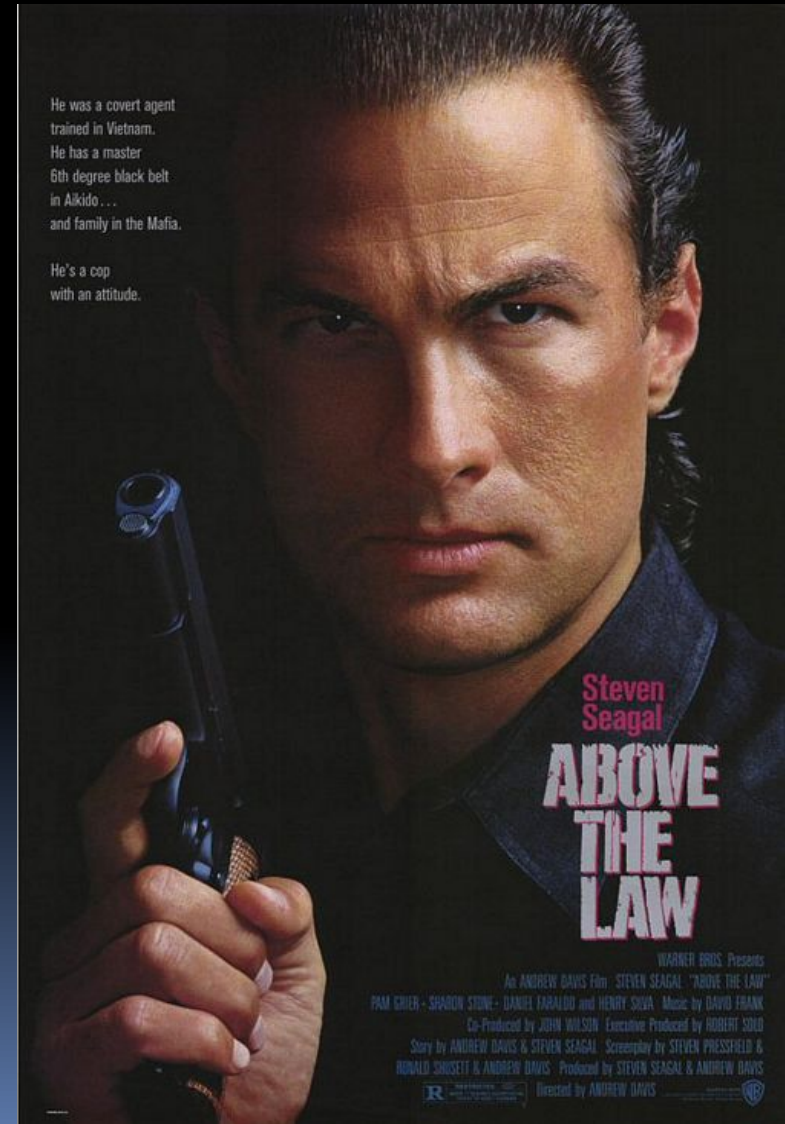

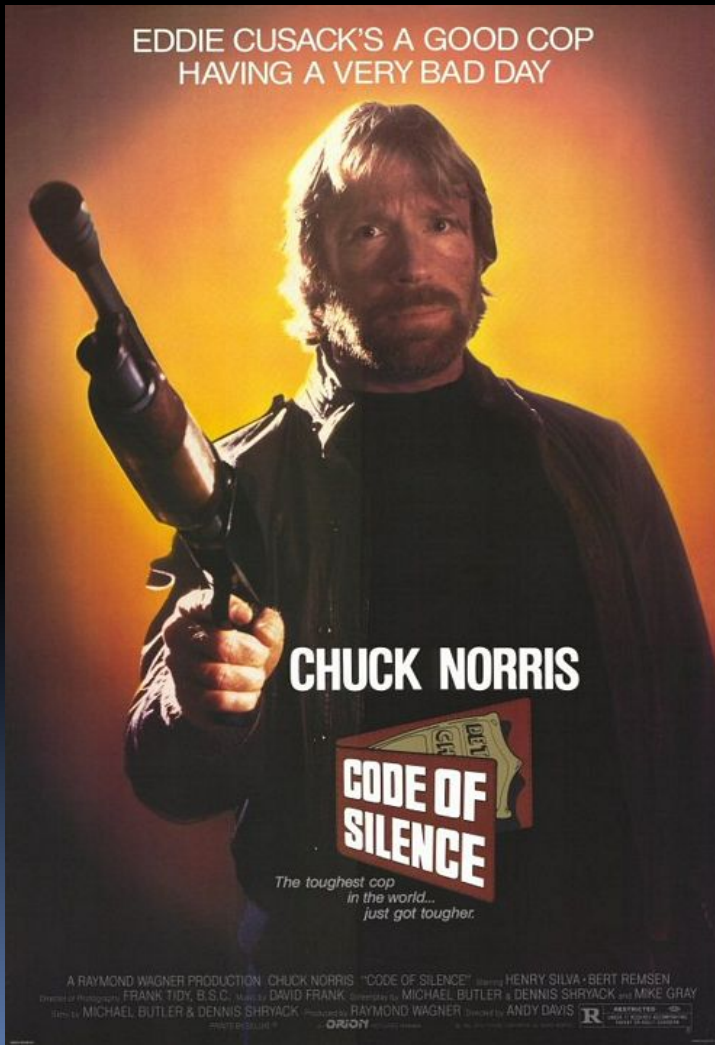

The Director: Andrew Davis

Davis started as an action film director.

1988

1985

For The Fugitive, he used some elements from Alfred Hitchcock.

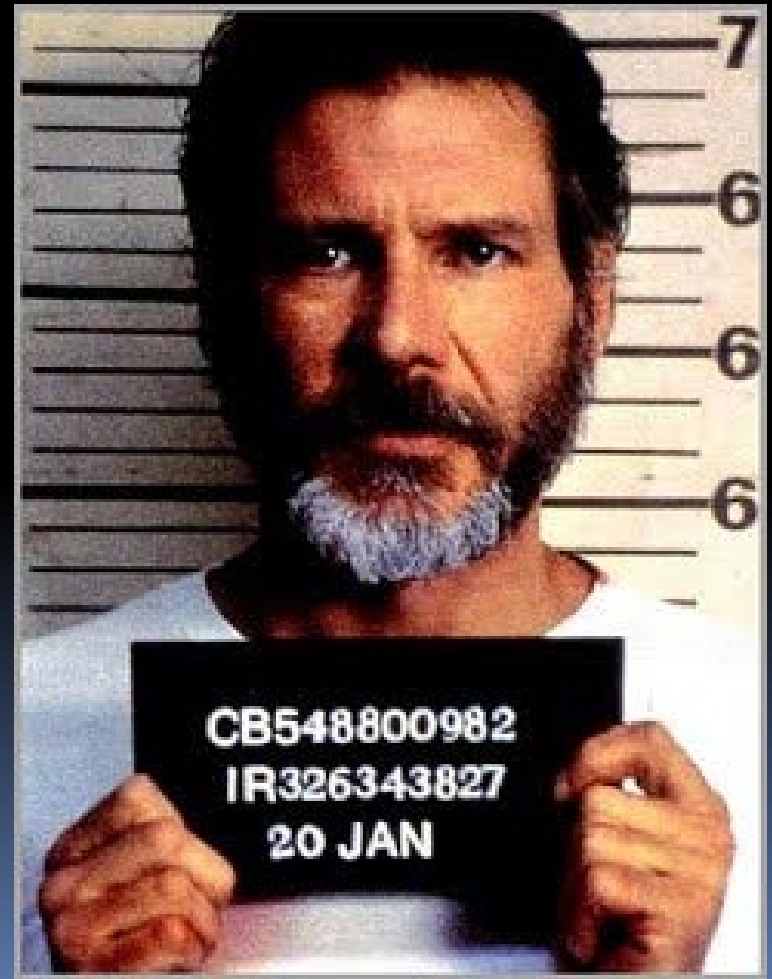

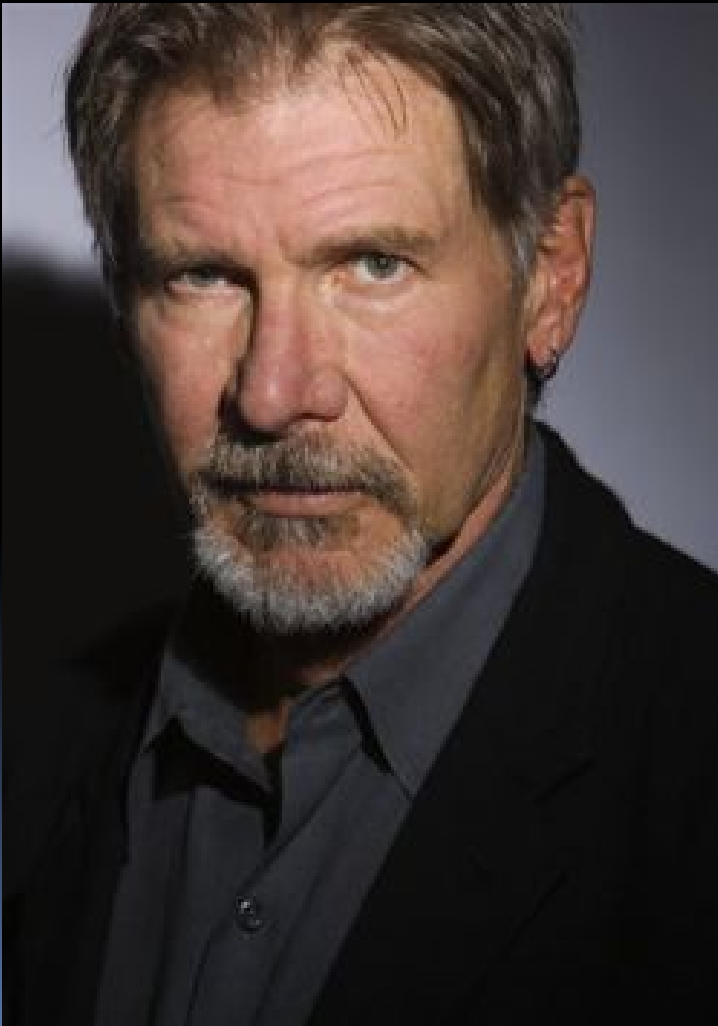

Hitch's films often featured characters wrongly accused.

The Cast: Harrison Ford

Ford was the first and only choice for Kimble.

He saw the character as a cutting-edge risk-taker.

In Support: Tommy Lee Jones

Jones won an Oscar as Deputy Samuel Gerard, who tracks Kimble.

Conflict: What if you were convicted of a crime you didn't commit?

To Watch For: Action

Davis started as an action director, and this film moves.

But he also knows how to direct actors.

Sela Ward as the doomed
Helen Kimble

L. Scott Caldwell as Deputy Poole

Also, watch for the similarities between these guys.

The Fugitive is next.
